Loss of Appetite

As a general rule there is nothing serious about a loss of appetite, and if you skip a meal or only eat two meals a day for a few days you will soon have a relish for your meals when meal time comes. Bear in mind that at least five hours should always elapse between meals so as to give the food ample time to digest and the stomach a period of rest before a second meal is taken. Then if you eat no more than you crave and take a reasonable amount of outdoor exercise every day you will not need to worry about your appetite. When the loss of appetite is caused by constipation as is often the case, that should be corrected at once. A dose of Chamberlain's Tablets will do it. Adv.

Rev. and Mrs. Warren P. Clark and daughter, Miss Geraldine, of Chillicothe, Mo., arrived Thursday for a brief visit with their son Manly Clark, and wife.

Summer Complaint in Children.

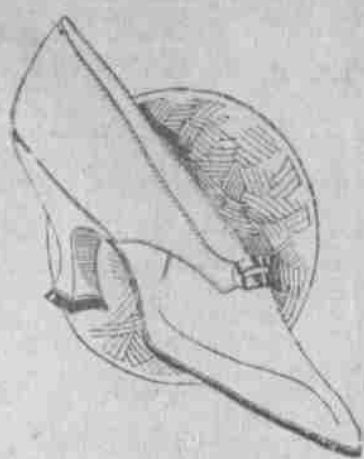

There is not anything like so many deaths from this disease now as before Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy came into such general use. When this remedy is given with castor oil as directed and proper care is taken as to diet, it is safe to say that fully ninety-nine out of every hundred cases recover. Mr. W. G. Campbell of Butler, Tenn., says, "I have used Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy for summer complaint in children. It is far ahead of anything I have ever used for this purpose." Adv.

Shelton Green of Hospital Unit No. 15, arrived in Lexington Friday from Camp Taylor, Ky., where he received his discharge.

Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy.

This medicine always wins the good opinion if not the praise of those who use it. Try it when you have need of such a remedy. Adv.

Coney as a Venice.

Coming up toward Sandy Hook on a perfectly placid sea we were blessed with just that amount of haze which turned Coney island into Venice, Arthur E. Shipley writes in Scribner's Magazine. The sea was an Adriatic lagoon; we might have left Trieste overnight! The same mercurial mist changed the clear-cut outlines of the skyscrapers into Turner's pictures and the Bay and the Post became ecstatic with the ecstasy of youth.

English Words.

It would be impossible to give the exact number of words in the English language. Words are constantly being coined and foreign words are being added to the language. A recent edition of a leading dictionary gives between 400,000 and 500,000 words. Many of them are derivatives, as run, running, ran, runner, etc.

Kerosene Kink.

It has been proved that if lamps and heaters in which kerosene is used as fuel are kept scrupulously clean, there will be a decided saving of oil; also, there will be an equal pleasing absence of the disagreeable odor that so often accompanies the burning of kerosene.

Who Owns the Ring?

That an engagement ring is no longer the property of a young lady who breaks her engagement is the recent verdict of an English court. The girl in the case had broken off the engagement, but decided to keep the tokens of regard as souvenirs—until the court interfered.—Savannah News.

Rusty Steel.

To clean rusty steel, oil well the rusty parts and set aside in this state for two or three days. Then wipe dry with clean rag and polish with emery or pumice stone. When very rusty and a high polish is desired rub the article with a little steel wool.

Seems an Unfair Division.

Thousands of hats discarded by English women are exported every year to Brazil, where they are eagerly bought by the Indians. The feathers and other ornaments on the hats are taken by the men, and the bare straw shapes given to their womenfolk.

Much Sameness in Mankind.

Console yourself, dear old man and brother; whatever you may be sure of, be sure at least of this, that you are dreadfully like other people. Human nature has a much greater genius for sameness than for originality.—Lowell.

One Advantage of Education.

We have always believed in the high possibilities of the movies, and more particularly since a charming girl told us she had found you could hold hands just as well at an educational film as any other.—Grand Rapids Press.

Three English Institutions.

Wherever the sons of Britannia may roam, three great and unmistakably English institutions set them apart from other races and creeds: Tea in the afternoon, handkerchiefs pushed up the sleeves and "dress" for dinner.

Strengthening Timber.

According to English scientists, electricity passed through timber when freshly cut makes it more resistant against decay and fungus growth.

Daily Thought.

There is no better ballast for keeping the mind steady on its keel and saving it from all risk of creakiness than business.—Lowell.

DID MUCH WORK WITH PEN

Famous Writers of the Past Got Along Well Without the Aid of the Typewriter.

An interesting question for academic debate is the probability of a greater literary output from prolific writers of past generations had they been able to avail themselves of the aid of a typewriter. A contributor to a current magazine deprecates the fact that Benjamin Franklin had no typewriter and wonders at the vast amount of writing he might have done had he not been compelled to use the slower pen method. Another writer doubts that the amount of writing would have been greatly increased, suggesting that the time saved probably would have been used in thought and investigation of the literary subjects. Dickens wrote all his novels with a quill. He could have done the writing in half the time on a typewriter and the printers could have saved half their time. But in these days of the typewriter no novelist is turning out good literature any faster than Dickens did. Thomas Jefferson left a whole library of his writings, put on paper with a pen.

STORK NEEDED IN EUROPE

That Famous Birds of Strasbourg Have Returned May Be Considered a Good Omen.

The storks of Strasbourg have more than local fame. Travelers in Europe who have visited the cathedral city of Lorraine are familiar with the long-legged birds who built their nests in the Place de Broglie.

The people of Strasbourg looked upon them as omens of good luck. The story goes that in the spring of 1914 the storks deserted the city. "Trouble is coming," said the old-timers as they passed the empty nests. It came. For five years, they say, there have been no storks in the Place de Broglie; but now they have come back.

The nests that had fallen into disrepair have been rebuilt, and the old-timers say, "Trouble is over and peace is here," as they pass now.

Europe needs the stork. The task assigned him in legend should keep him busy. There is much replacement to be done.

CHINESE BRAVES.

Some Chinese laborers in France, who were accidentally brought under shell fire, are said to have registered a protest on the ground that the inhabitants in their part of China are divided into two classes—the braves and the not-braves. They explained that they belonged to the not-brave section.

It was unfair, they said, that a not-brave man should be called upon to undergo dangers which were reserved for brave men, and for the endurance of which brave men received approbation, distinctions and honors not bestowed upon not brave men. This system opens up wide possibilities, and it would be interesting to inquire whether membership in each class depends upon inheritance, or selection on the part of the individual.

RIGHTEOUS INDIGNATION.

Corrigan—Why do you call that hated Hun "Jerry," me b'y?

Soldier Son—Oh, I don't know how it started, dad.

Corrigan (sternly)—Well, ye'll raymember how it indded in this house iv ye don't lave off sayin' it in me hearin'! Are ye only a nominal Irish-American?—Buffalo Express.

DISCREET SILENCE.

"I don't hear you complaining about the high cost of living."

"No," answered the man with the market basket, "what's the use of going around reminding everybody that you are expecting to be charged extra for anything you get?"—San Francisco Chronicle.

HE WANTED SIXTY BONES.

A colored man proudly wearing the uniform of his Uncle Sam entered the elevator at the statehouse recently.

"Say, boss," he was heard to remark, "take me up whah dey give de soldiers dat boneless money."—Indianapolis Star.

USE FOR IDLE LAND.

There are 500,000,000 acres of idle land in the United States and 15,000,000 acres of idle land in New York state alone which could take care of 10,000,000 sheep.
